THESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1866.

Something for Conservative Republicans to Consider.

WE remarked the other day that the throwing overboard of General Dix by the New York Democratic Nominating Convention was a virtual abandonment of the August Convention movement inaugurated in this city. The New York Times confirms this view of the case in an elaborate editorial article, in which it exposes the duplicity of the Democratic leaders with reference to that movement, and their evident intention to use it for the furtherance of their own distinctively partisan ends. The Times says that the Philadelphia Convention set out to go before the country upon the single issue of the admission of loyal Representatives to Congress from loyal States. It was not contemplated to strengthen or build up the Democratic party. Hence the conservative Republicans of New York sent delegates to the Albany Nominating Convention, which had been called in accordance with the August Convention plan of Union.

The Times then goes on to show how Gen. Dix was sacrificed, and Hoffman nominated on the express ground that it would contribute to the safety and interest of the Democratic party. Dix was accordingly slaughtered, although at first, as the Times asserts, full two-thirds of the Convention were in his favor. But everything was made to bow to the supposed interests of the Democratic

Not content with this action, the Convention went on to introduce a number of purely partisan issues, which conservative Republicans could not endorse. They nominated but a single Republican on the whole ticket, and in making up the Central Committee of the party appointed more than two thirds of it from active members of the Democratic party. Indeed, in its whole action the Convention showed no regard to the Philadelphia movement, other than an endeavor to prostitute it to strengthening the Democratic party and restoring it to power. This, the Times asserts, was not the entertainment to which conservative Republicans were invited, and it significantly adds that while there are tens of thousands of them who desire the "admission of loyal men to Congress from loyal States, they will be quite likely to prefer taking their chances of securing this result from the action of the Republican party, modified as it may be by reflection and moderate counsels, rather than seek it in the way marked out for them by the Albany Democratic Convention." We rejoice that the Times, and those for whom it speaks, refuse to be thus used for the ends of the Domocratic party. What has been the history of that party for the past five years, that any Republican should think of committing to it the destinies of the country now? And if in New York the conservative Republicans are thus repudiating an arrangement which would make them a mere tail to the Democratic kite, what must they say and do here in Pennsylvania, where they are asked to contribute directly to the election of such a man as Heister Clymer for Governor? Not only are conservative Republicans required here to support a ticket nominated by and made up solely of Democrats, but a ticket headed by a man whose disloyal course in the past has been so notorious and offensive that General Grant says it is an insult to any soldier to ask him to vote for him? What do our conservative Republicans say to this? Are they ready to be sold out bodily to the Demogratic party? Is it best for them to blot out their connection with the past glorious and patriotic record of the great Union party of Pennsylvania, and submit themselves to the dictation of the men who have been and still are the leaders of the Democracy? If New York conservative Republicans can't stand Hoffman, can those of Pennsylvania endorse Clymer? Remember he stands by his record, and defiantly endorses every word of it. If he is right, then the Union men were wrong during the whole war. Are Union men, even of the conservative order, ready to endorse that conclusion by their votes, and thus cast disgrace and odium upon their own most noble and heroic record? We do not believe it. On the contrary, discerning, as they must, the signs of the times, presaging the utter overthrow and discomfiture of the Democratic party by the people, let them hasten to return to the old Union organization, and seek such modifications in its policy and action as may seem to them desirable by wise counsel and dispassionate discussion within its ranks.

THE Ledger conceals from its readers the most important part of General Grant's statement-that where he asserts that it would be an "insult" to any Union soldier to ask him to vote for Heister Clymer. The Ledger professes to be an independent paper, and should let its readers see the whole of General Grant's statement.

IT IS ESTIMATED in conservative quarters that the slaughter of General Dix by the New York Democrats will cost their party in that State at least fifteen thousand votes at the polls this fall. It will cause them to lose votes in other States as well, since it so clearly reveals the treschery of the Democrats to the August-Convention movement.

All for the "Old Time" Democracy. THE Age, in speaking of the speeches made last night at the Clymer mass meeting, says they were "full of the old-time doctrines of the Democratic party."

So they were, and the whole spirit of the meeting was that of the Peace Democracy of Pennsylvania during the war. It was a Democratic gathering throughout, composed of the same class of men who attended Democratic meetings in 1963 and 1864, and opposed Abraham Lincoln and the prosecution of the war. To illustrate the spirit of this Clymer meeting, we will narrate a little incident which occurred in our presence.

A boisterous, loud mouthed Democrat, who had been seated amid a wagon-load of companions, as they passed along in the procession, stood up, and plucking off a dirty old hat from the head of one of his neighbors, held it up before the crowd and exclaimed :- "This is the hat that Abe Lincoln stole from a nigger to wear through Baltimore."

This meeting is but an illustration of the base uses to which conservative Republicans are to be put in building up the regular oldtime Democratic party. It is but just to state. however, that aside from a few leaders on the stage, there were no conservative Republicans in the crowd last night-at least none who acknowledged themselves to be so. The truth is, the August-Convention movement was a deep game to transfer conservative Republicans bodily to the regular Democratic party. They have already bolted the arrangement in New York; and the swindle was from the start so apparent in this State, that it failed utterly to enlist any popular sympathy or respect.

General Grant's Charge on the Enemy. GENERAL GRANT'S statement of his political views is a terrible blow to the Clymer party in this State. It is something for which they were utterly unprepared. And it so admirably hits the case that everybody sees at a glance its tremendous effect. It sweeps away at a breath the fallacies and delusions with which selfish and unscrupulous leaders have attempted to befog the soldiers, and lead them to the support of a man who was disloyal in the hour of the nation's sorest need. "It is a gross insult," says the great leader, "to ask you to vote for such a man, and against that noble and gallant soldier, General Geary." The voice of General Grant will be heeded by his tens of thousands of brave comrades in arms, not merely because it is his voice, but because be speaks the sentiments which must fill every brave Union soldier's breast. The Northern traitors who assailed the Government in the hour of trial and danger, says General Grant, are worse than the Southern Rebel, led astray by local influences and associations.

THE New York Herald, after casting off the party of Southern sympathizers, is now coming out as radical as it was before violent in its conservatism. To-day it opposes negro suffrage for the present, and strongly recommends the adoption of the Constitutional amendment by the Southern States:-

"This, among the Southern politicians, may seem a hard condition either way; but as it is evident that the North will not consent to a repre-sentation of the Southern blacks in Congress without suffrage, the Southern States must make their election upon this amendment, one way or the other. Nor can we understand why there should be any hesitation, under the present state of things, in the choice of the alternative. There is a prejudice of two hundred years' growth in the South against the admission of the blacks among the Southern whites to a footing of political equality. This prejudice cannot be removed by Congressional legislation, nor even by a Constitutional amendment. It must be left to the changing influences of time. Very well. Even so this amendment proposes to leave it. Every State concerned has the choice of admit ting to or excluding from the suffrage its black population; and as this prejudice against the blacks is the prominent idea among the ruling Southern whites, their only course is to accept the amendment, with the distinct understanding among themselves that they will exclude the blacks from the ballot-box in toto for the present, submitting to the loss of their representation in Congress.

CLYMER will have to withdraw. The Democrats do not wish to "insult" the soldiers, and yet General Grant says they will do it if they ask them to vote for Clymer.

New Absurdities in Numismatics.-- A new system of small coinage is now under consideration by the Government, and will in all probability be adopted. The proposed new cent is to be made of nickel, the same as at present, but the centre of the coin has a raised star, the nucleus of which is represented by a hole through the coin. The two-cent pieces have two perforated stars, and the three-cent coins three. Thus by holding at the defendance of the coins three th three. Thus by holding either denomination to the light, or by simply touching them so as to feel the holes, the value of a piece of money is unmistakably known. The half-dimes and dimes are a larger coin of better metal, but are to be distinguished by one and two perforated stars.
